

THE DAILY PHOENIX.

"Let our Just Censure"

Attend the True Event."

BY J. A. SELBY.

COLUMBIA, S. C., THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 19, 1874.

VOL. IX—NO. 307.

Alluding to the controversy lately existing between the Emperor of Germany and the Pope, the Chicago Tribune says: "The struggle of centuries, to which the Emperor refers in his letter, has had one culmination, and bids fair to have another. In 1077, Henry IV, of Germany, stood for three days by the castle of Canossa, bare-footed and clad in hair-cloth, praying the proud pontiff, who had excommunicated him and so driven him from his throne, to pardon his sins. Now, William I, of Germany, has virtually driven Gregory VII's successor from his temporal throne, and perhaps can, if he chooses to do so, name the successor to Pius IX. The tables are turned, with a vengeance." The tables have not stopped turning. It is Emperor William's opportunity now; it may be the Pope's triumph tomorrow. Sydney Smith was right when he averred that there's nothing certain but death and taxes. Look at the changes of the last ten years! Who shall foretell the changes to come? He laughs best who laughs last.

A NOBLE SENTIMENT ADMIRABLY EXPRESSED.—We have seen nothing in many a day in which humanity rose to a higher dignity and beauty, than a remark with which the Deutsche Nachrichten, a Berlin evening paper, commences an article on a recent discussion in the German Reichstag on the affairs of Alsace and Lorraine. It was this: "The sentiment of the Alsatis and Lorrainers that the re-union of their home to the fatherland is a misfortune, we honor all the more, the less we are able to share it." How seldom it occurs that in our judgment of others we can ignore self and put ourselves in their place!

An exchange says that "Dr. Schmitt, of the University of Athens, has just completed a map of the moon, on which he has been at work thirty-four years!" How did he get down?
